

The Scotland Malawi Partnership, NIDOS, the Scottish Fair Trade Forum, IDEAS, LINK Community Development, Moray House and the Cooperative Education Trust Scotland invite you to attend

Education and International Development: an exploration of good practice

A special one-day conference looking at what 'good practice' means for education programmes in the developing world, and for development education in Scotland.

FRIDAY 27th APRIL 2012

Paterson's Land, Moray House, the University of Edinburgh 9.30am – 4.45pm

Education INGOs, development education organisations, teachers, educationalists, local activists, diaspora groups, local authorities, students, and other interested individuals and organisations are all welcome. The event is free but you must register, by emailing global-ed-conf@btconnect.com

Southern partners with relevant school-linked education experience are actively encouraged to take part. Four grants of up to £300 are available to help facilitate travel for southern partners to feed into the event – for details contact global-ed-conf@btconnect.com by the 24th January
